Assessment of own contribution and supervisor's support:

a. Development and implementation of the project

- I did almost all the work with some inputs from supervisor(s)
- I did most of the work with substantial inputs from supervisor(s)
- I needed a lot of assistance from the supervisor(s)

Comment: I focused on the interventions, obtaining effects & costs and developed the evidence briefs (appendix) for the conditions. The conditions & interventions were decided upon by both my supervisors & myself

b. Analysis of data

- I did almost all the work with some inputs from supervisor(s)
- I did most of the work with substantial inputs from supervisor(s)
- I needed a lot of assistance from the supervisor(s)

Comment: I provided all the input for the analysis myself. The analysis is a code that was run into R. This code was already developed. I did have occasional meetings with the data manager to ensure successful analyses

c. Interpretation of findings

- I did almost all the work with some inputs from supervisor(s)
- I did most of the work with substantial inputs from supervisor(s)
- I needed a lot of assistance from the supervisor(s)

Comment: ^{all} ~~most~~ results were interpreted by me. Some conditions required a deeper understanding of the code in fairchoices and were discussed (Oystein and myself), but almost all the work was mine. Oystein mostly helped to structure the paper better. drug treatment in pd.

d. Discussion of findings

- I did almost all the work with some inputs from supervisor(s)
- I did most of the work with substantial inputs from supervisor(s)
- I needed a lot of assistance from the supervisor(s)

Comment:

" I have written the paper myself, with input from my supervisors when asked for it, then we would meet, ^{but} Meetings were not frequent. Most of the input has been textual/structuring focussed

If joint thesis, what was your relative contribution to the following:
(Zero indicating you did nothing and 100% indicating you did everything)
